Buckley Technology explains notable actions to take for upcoming NCUA exams

NCUA released a letter to credit unions detailing its supervisory priorities for its 2024 examination program (24-CU-01). NCUA will continue to conduct exams both onsite and offsite. The Small Credit Union Exam Program continues to remain in place for most federal credit unions with assets under $50 million; while the risk-focused exam procedures will be used for all other credit unions.

Specific to NCUA's information security and cybersecurity priorities, BTG has compiled a list of notable actions that credit unions should take in preparation for upcoming exams.

Research: Expectations & concerns drive borrower behaviors
By Erika Romenesko, Strategy Manager, Lending Member Experience, TruStageTM

Money matters are top of mind for a lot of people today. Clickable economic headlines, charismatic financial influencers and the rising costs of nearly everything are definitely contributing to consumers' increased financial anxiety.

Worry often sparks action. Indeed, new research from TruStageTM indicates that consumers are taking financial steps that address their unique expectations and concerns. Interestingly, these steps appear to differ based on several nuances of the borrower journey, including the type of loan borrowers are considering.
